Administration

TO THE GRADUATES OF 1981:

There is a statement over the outer doors of the auditorium of your alma mater — Stamford High School:

"The youth of a nation are the trustees of prosperity." As graduates of Stamford High School you have not only the task but the obligation to continue to seize every opportunity to develop your potential to the fullest while you are in the spring of your life. Do not wait as Albert Camus did to find your invincible summer within yourself in the midst of winter. Your invincible summer is your integrity and courage nurtured by faith in yourselves to master your own destiny. Remember, our posterity depends on your creative and prophetic responses to the demands of the future.

Congratulations, Stamford High School Graduates!

This is your day. You have worked and waited for graduation. Sometimes you have been frustrated and angry, and, at other times, you have felt enthusiastic and satisfied. These experiences are much like the experiences you will encounter in the world you are entering, and success in higher education and the work world requires the same characteristics you found necessary in achieving success at Stamford High School.

Setting goals, both short term and long range, working towards these goals and knowing when to move on and reset goals is invaluable in living.

Listening and hearing what people are saying puts you in the driver's seat. Knowing what others know and how they feel about what they know helps you deal with difficult situations.

One last word, when in doubt, communicate. Communication is your single most powerful tool. Use it! Learn to use communication, both written and oral, to your advantage.

Congratulations and the best of luck to each of you.

TALES of SIR HAROLD DECOSTER
ENGLAND in Literature
SF
STAMFORD HIGH SCHOOL 1980
BODETKA '81

A Student's Tale

Sir Harold Lupold awoke one morning and left his small village of Dipville to seek out a powerful weapon which Dipville could use to defend itself against the dreaded feudal King Norcombe. King Norcombe had sent his large, powerful army marching towards Dipville in order to evict the people and erect a market place. The King's army was well provisioned, while the villagers had no weapons whatsoever. Lady Lupold urged her only son to venture out in search of a defense. Sir Harold became Dipville's only hope.

He had not gone far when he came upon a large brick red castle on a hill. Dismounting his trusty steed, Sir Harold pushed open the doors and entered. As he strode in, a rough hand grabbed him by the neck and pushed him through a large, looming door marked GUIDANCE.

He emerged hours later, schedule in hand. The adventure had just begun . . .

The Arts

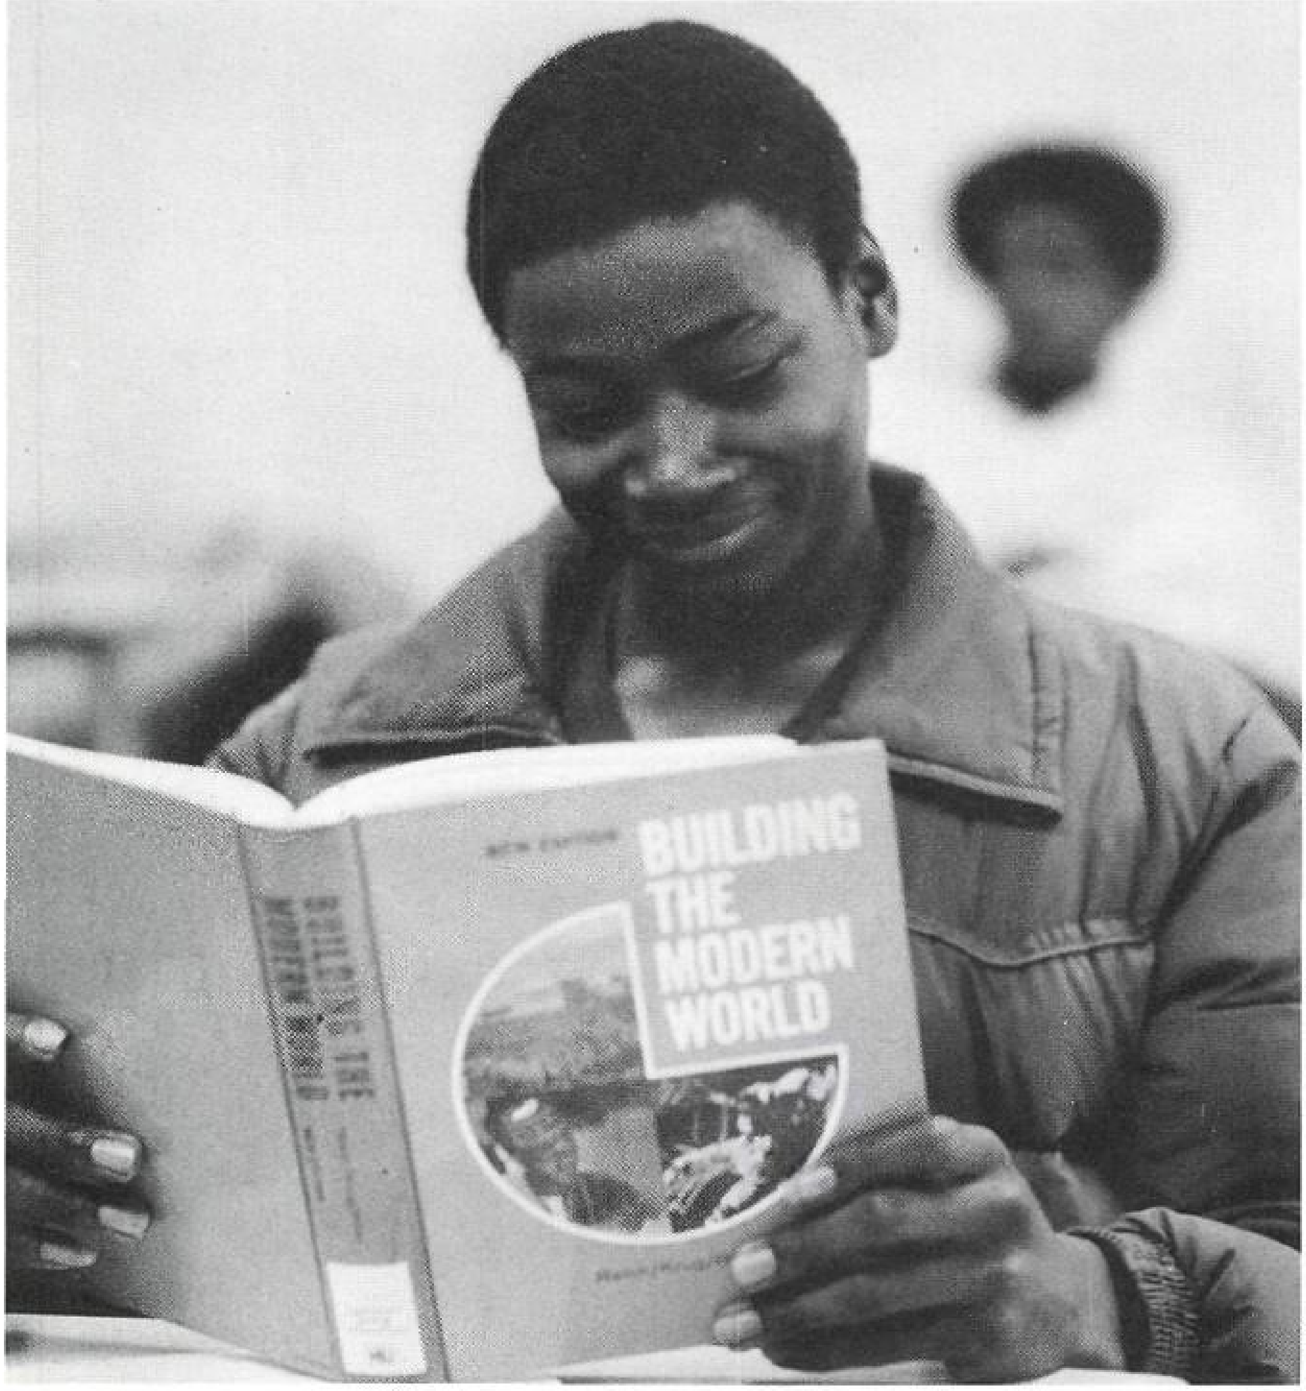
The first class on Sir Harold's schedule was located in the third tower. He climbed the winding staircase to the distant clamor of bells and found himself in a room surrounded by pieces of artwork. Squire Preu, head of the Art Department, took his arm and showed him the different classes. Sir Harold saw knights working at ceramics, jewelry-making, and drawing and painting.

"Oh my," thought Sir Harold as he rested in one of the classes. He turned to the figure beside him, a lovely young maiden, and struck up a conversation. Minutes later, a young lad came at the fair maiden with a chisel and hammer and began to chip away at her skin.

"Unhand that fair maiden!" cried Sir Harold.

"But Sir," returned the lad, "she's only a statue . . . "

Sir Harold's Education had just begun . . .



The Historians

Sir Harold's next class was in the first tower where he was greeted by the jovial Squire Kovacs. As they walked down the corridor, he showed Sir Harold a variety of classes. They passed by knights who were studying Ancient and Medieval History, Law and Justice, and European History.

"Here is your class," quoth Squire Kovacs.

Sir Harold entered the large history room, and was handed a book. He was directed to read the first chapter. However, he just could not resist glancing through the pages and reading about the past.

"Maybe," thought Sir Harold, "by learning about the past I can discover what to do about my future." And so he continued to read . . .

The Speakers

As Sir Harold ventured down the long corridor he was engulfed by a group of knights heading toward a large room. Caught up in the tide of facts, Sir Harold followed them inside and took a seat. The large room with a stage was filled with knights talking among themselves.

"Pray thee," said Sir Harold to a knight seated beside him "What occurreth here today?"

The knight's reply was stifled by Squire Markosky who quieted the audience and began to speak.

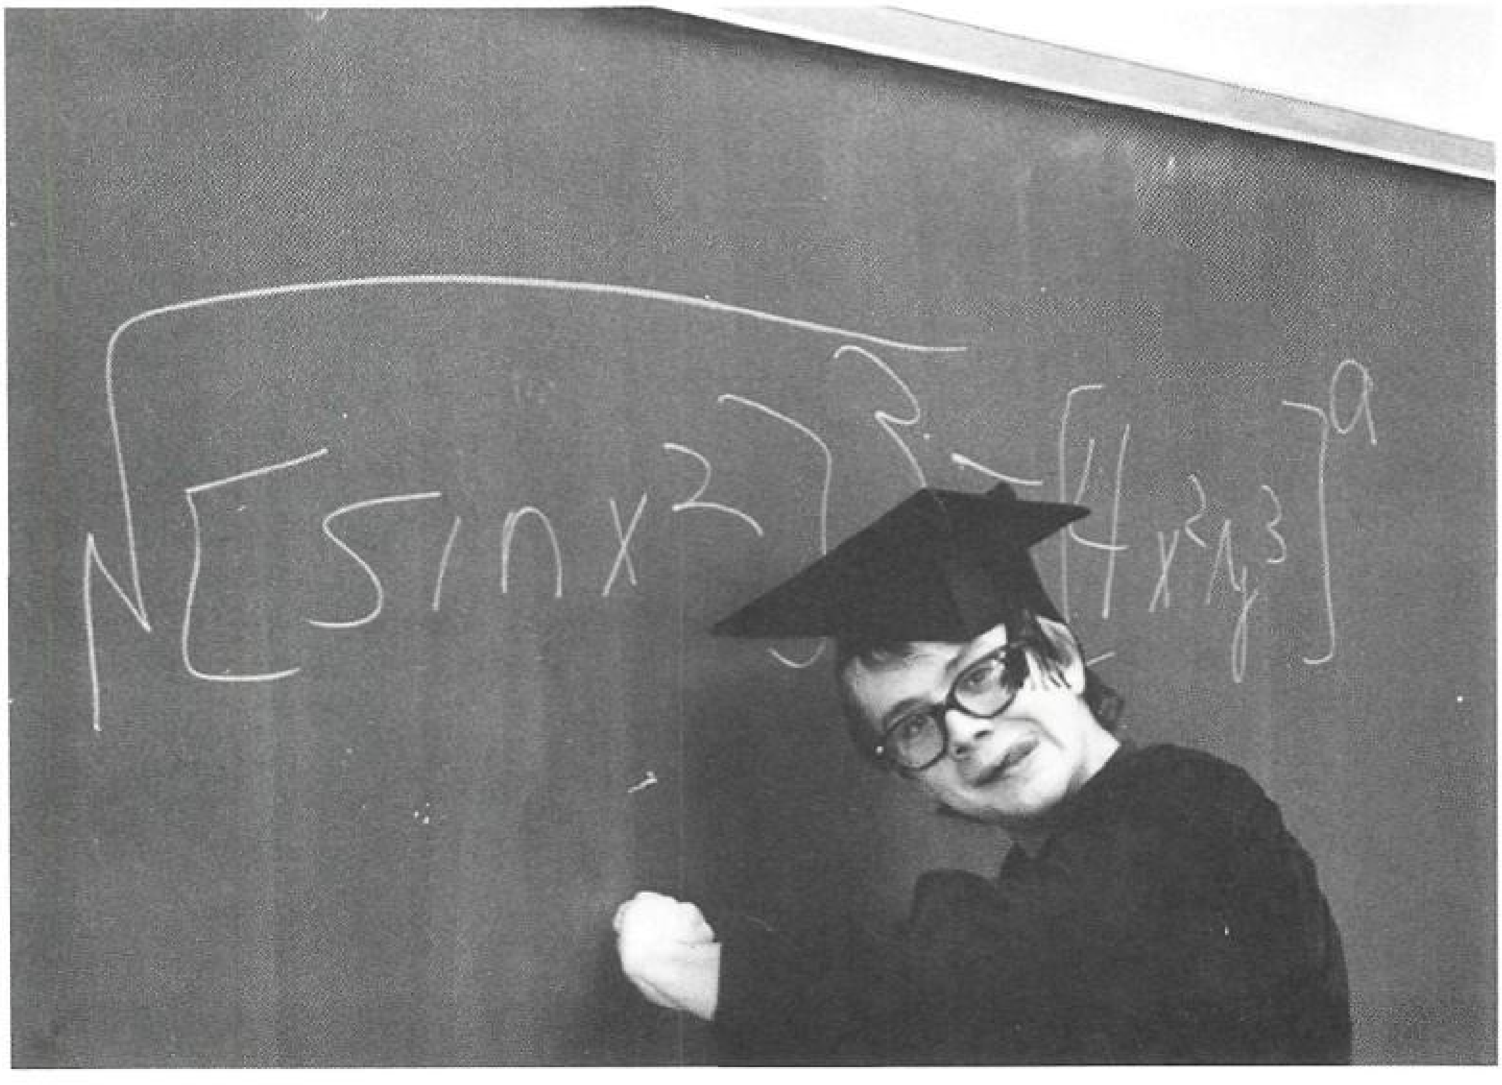
"We at the castle are very privileged to have someone very special with us today. I hope you appreciate those that give their time to come before you to share ideas and experiences with you. Sometimes you can learn more by just listening to other people's points of view. So without further adieu . . . "

The audience applauded and Sir Harold sat upright in his seat and listened attentively . . .

The Mathematicians

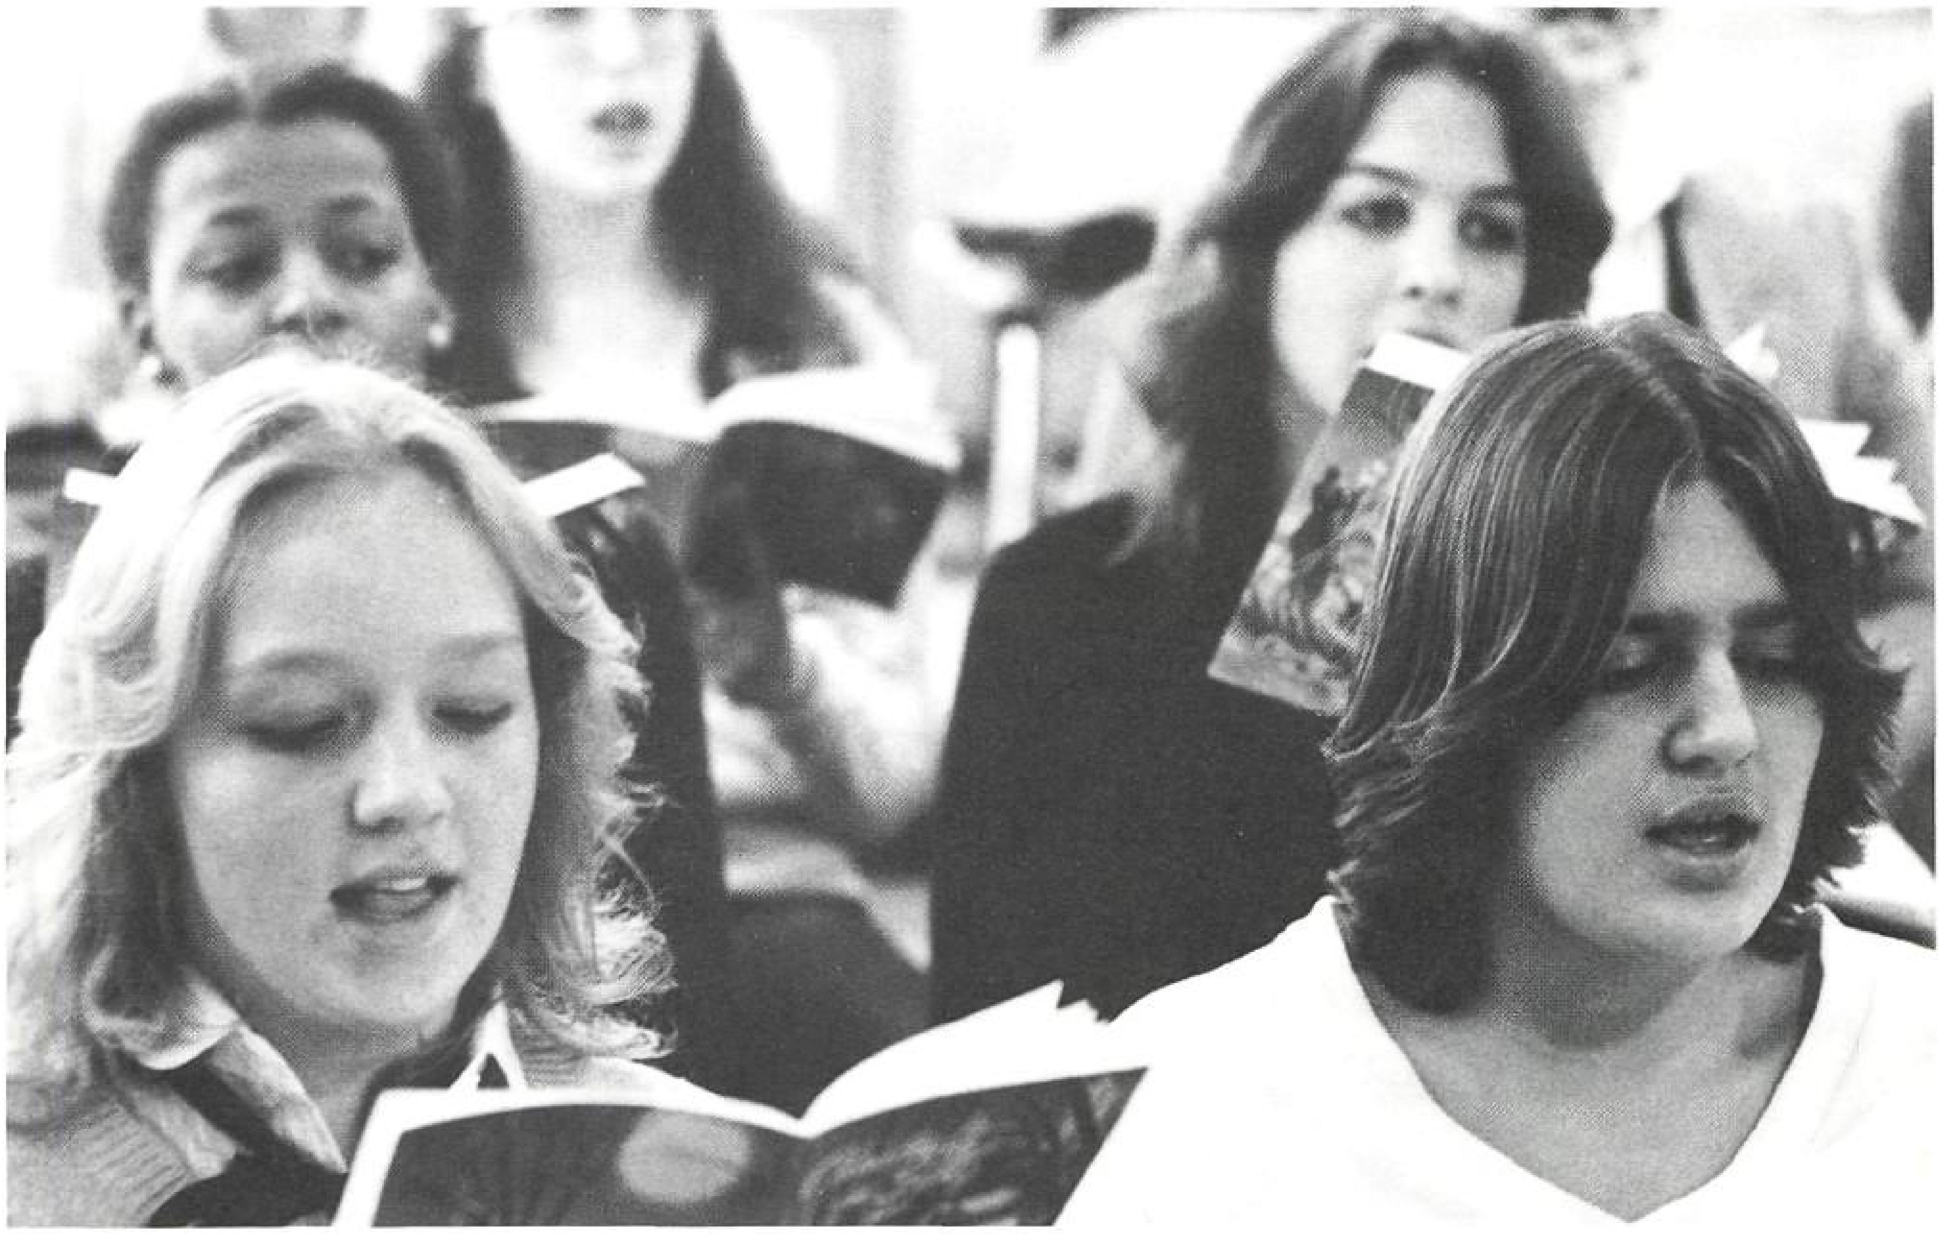
Sir Harold then ventured across the glass drawbridge into another section of the large castle. He found himself in the sixth tower where Squire Bellantoni led him past rooms where knights were busy working on Geometry, Algebra, Trigonometry, and Calculus. Squire Bellantoni deposited him in a room and handed him a piece of paper with his first problem on it. It read: If two carriages left the castle at the same time, and one of the carriages had two horses and the other had four, and they both fell into a river and the current was against them, what time would they reach the first hill?

Sir Harold sighed, and set to work . . .



The Minstrels

Sir Harold found his way to his next class and was surrounded by beautiful music. He peeked in the window of the first room and saw knights sitting and singing various tunes. He entered the next room to find knights with instruments leaving the room. He followed them out onto the large grassy field near the castle. Someone handed him a long flag, and as the knights began to march, so did Sir Harold. When they turned unexpectedly towards the left, Sir Harold quickly spun round. His flag stick happened to hit Squire Murphy, the leader of the Minstrels, squarely on the head. Sir Harold bid a hasty retreat . . .



The Craftsmen

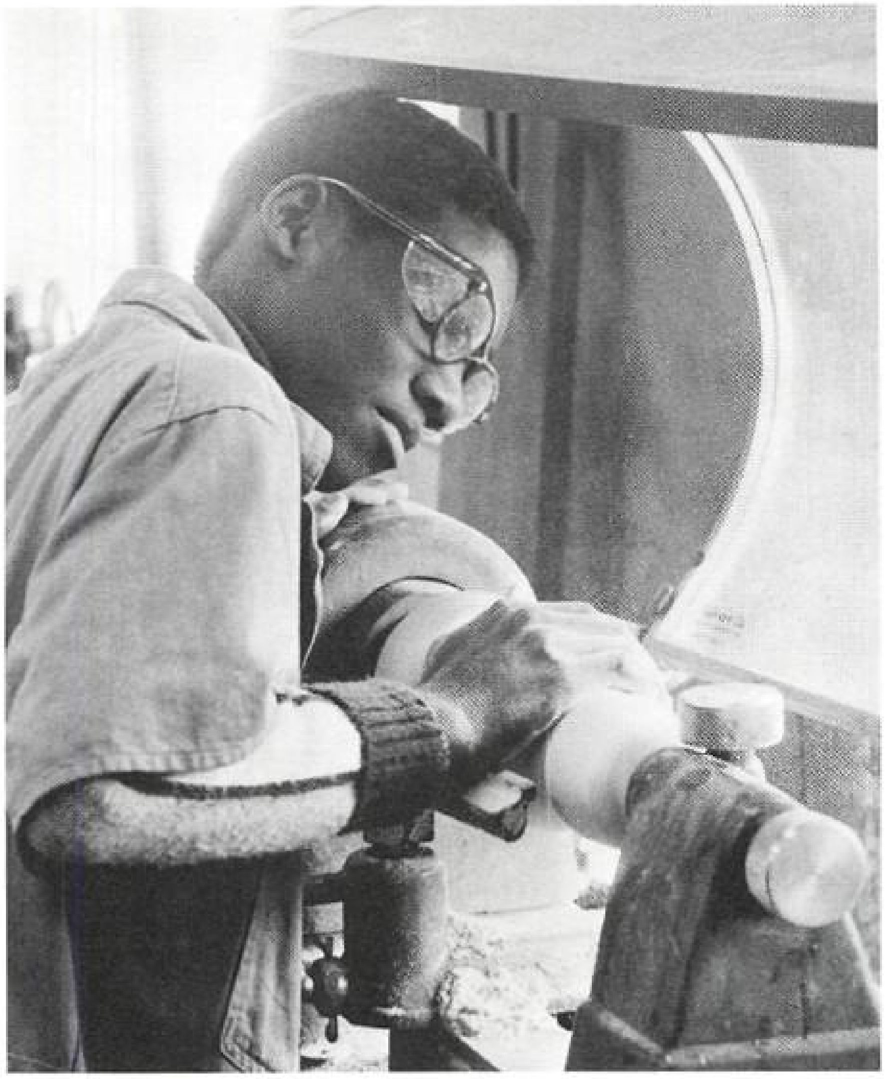
When the bell rang, Sir Harold ventured down the stairway and found himself in a long corridor. Strange sounds filled the air around him. He peeked into a room and saw a dozen fair maidens stitching various garments. He turned another corner and discovered knights working busily on pieces of wood and metal, forming tables, chairs, working on blueprints of castles and manor houses.

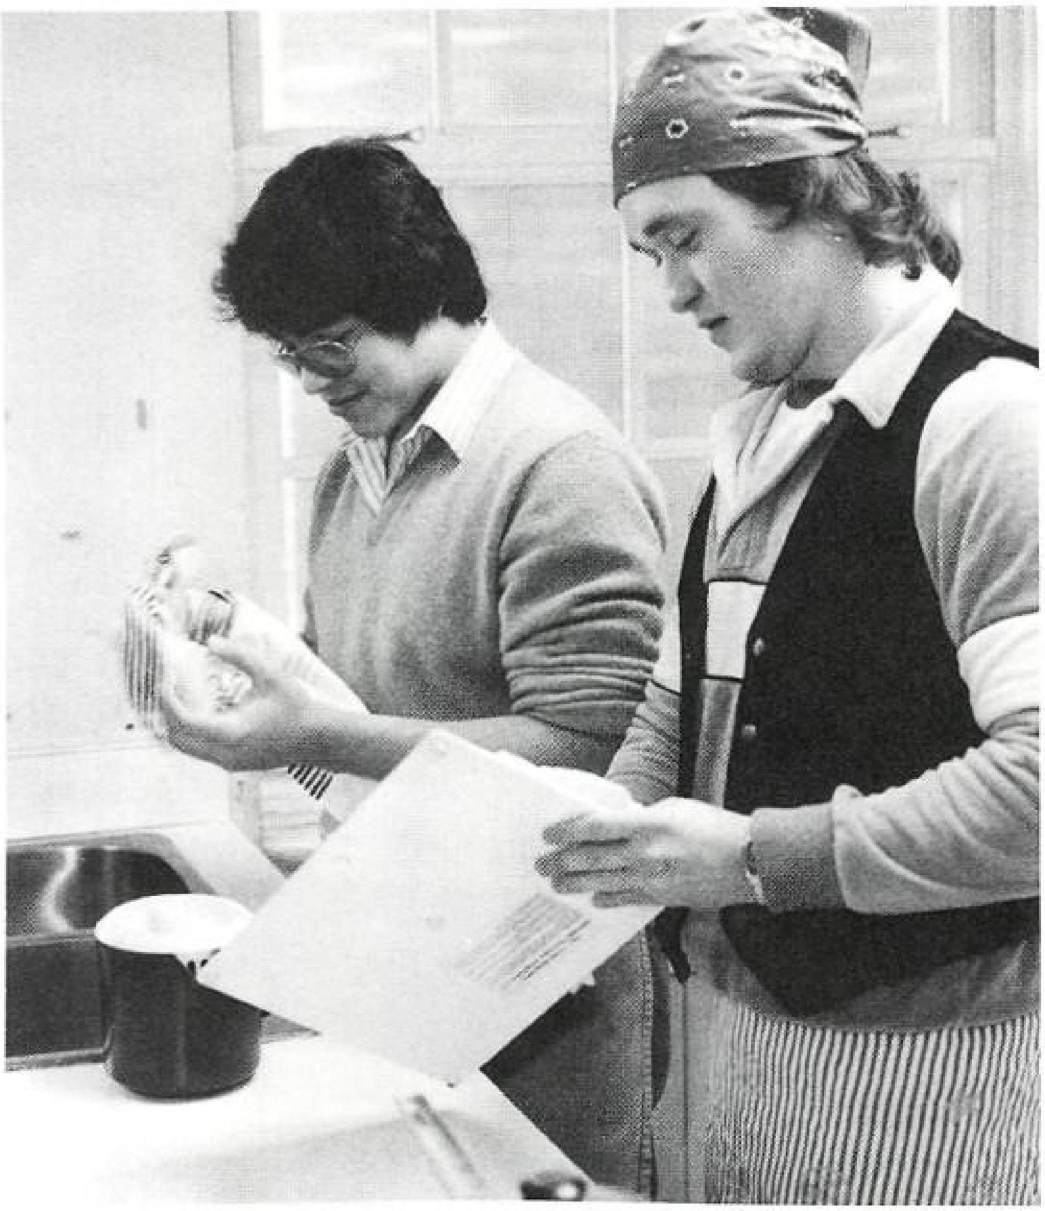
Seeing the many knights working away in the metal shop, Sir Harold saw his opportunity to attain a weapon for his threatened village of Dipville and the end of his quest. He seized a long stick of metal and thrust it into the open flame. The sparks flew! The air was filled with tumultuous clamor.

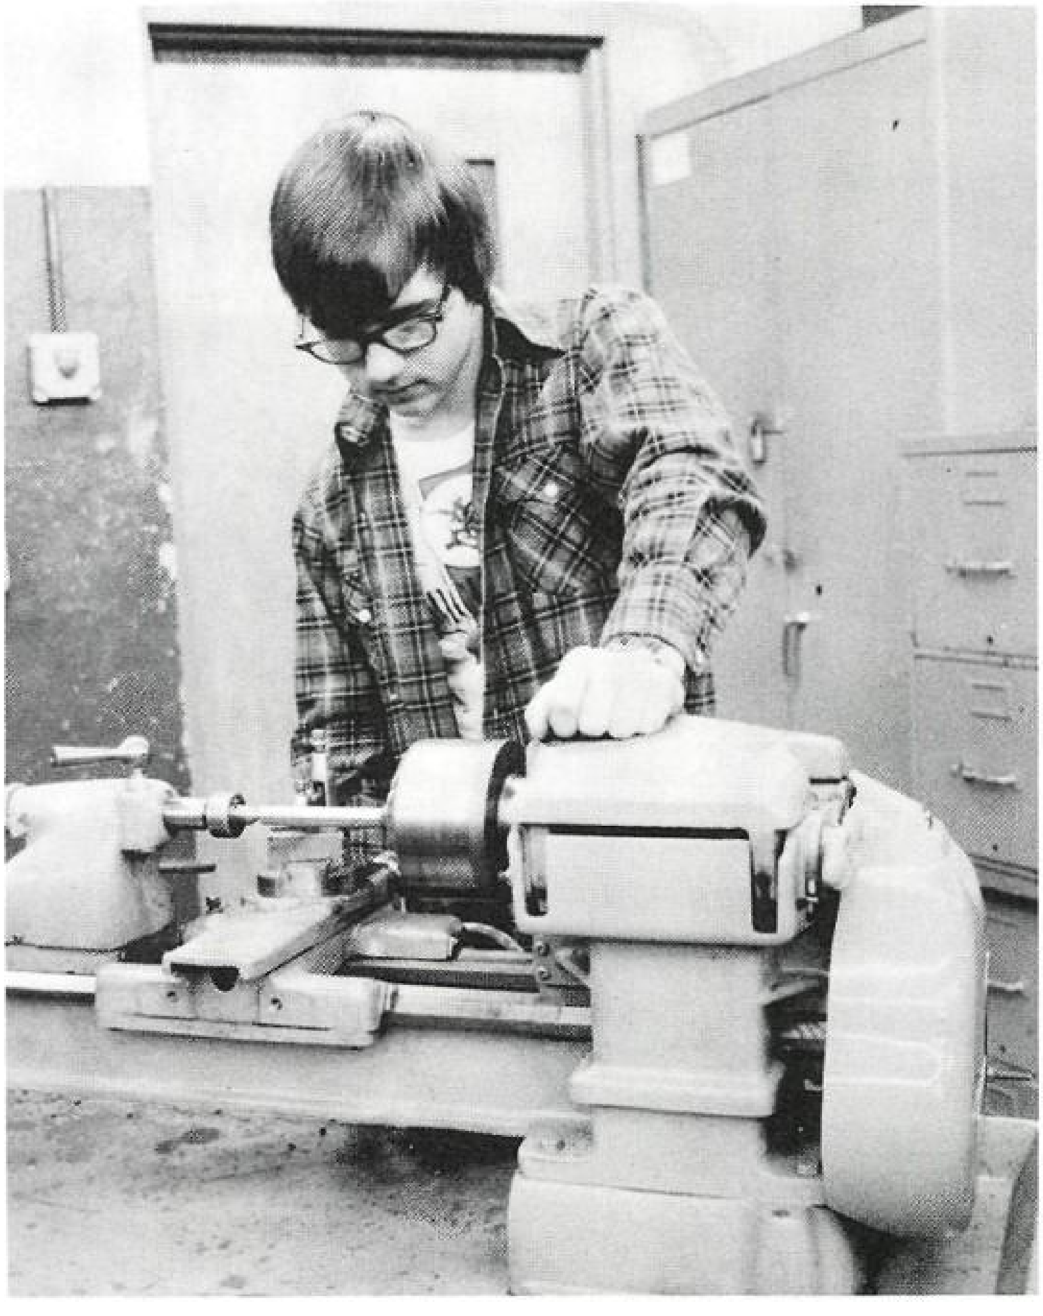
Sir Harold withdrew what remained of the stick of metal.

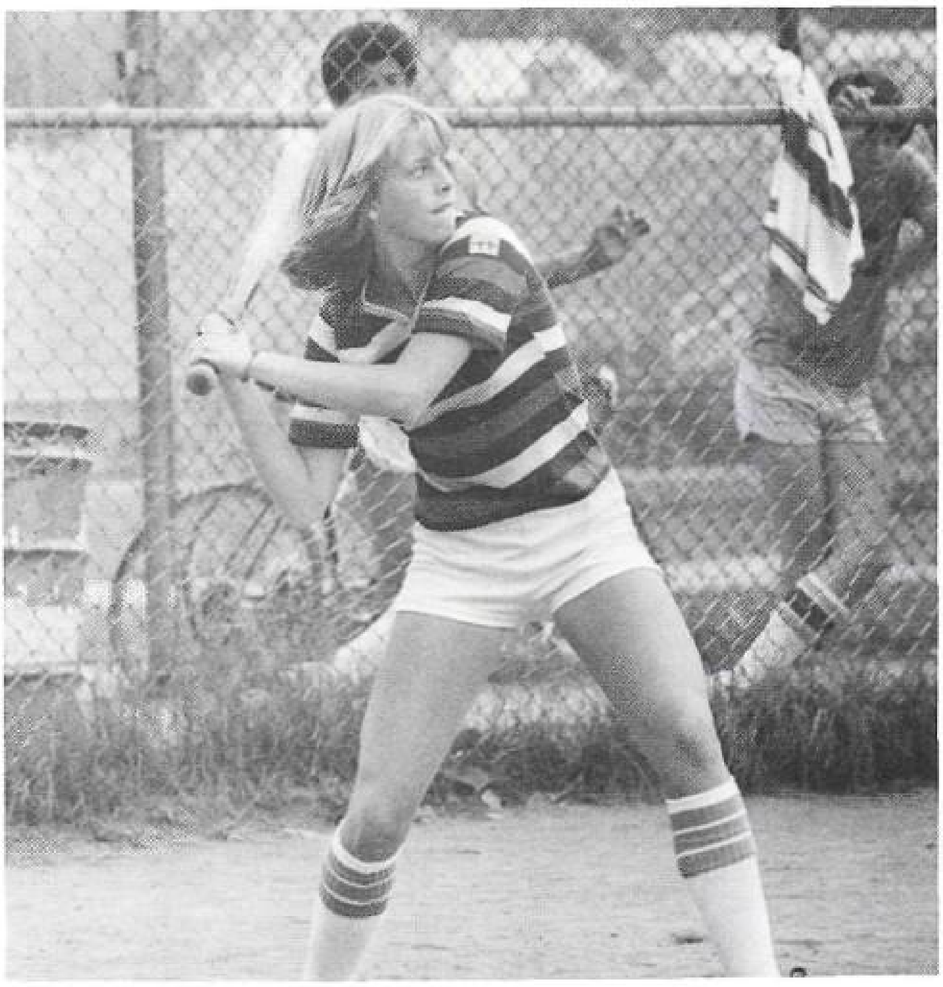
"You've made a nice washer," said a young lad.

"Gee," said Sir Harold, "can you teach me about this?"









The Athletes

Sir Harold's physical education class was in the other part of the castle. He crossed the connecting drawbridge and ventured down the staircase. He was immediately met with lads and lasses in various stages of dishabille. Someone threw a round ball that hit him directly in the nose and called for him to come and join the game. Sir Harold clomped onto the wooden floor in his armor and looked around helplessly. A shrill whistle assaulted his ears.

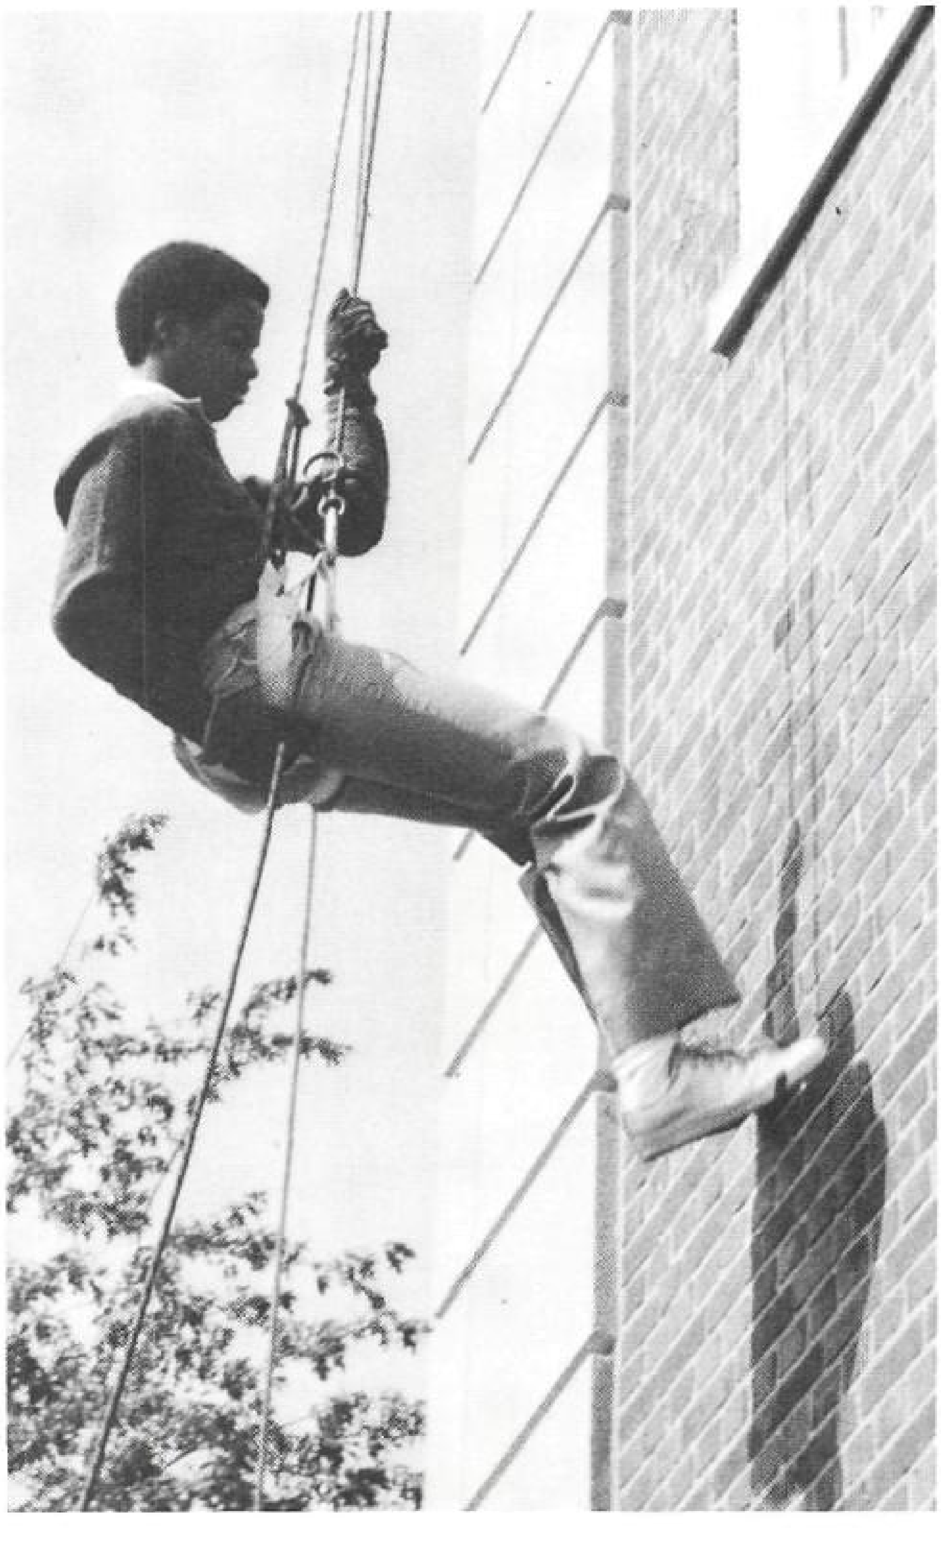
"What class are you in?" demanded Squire Hagan, "Outdoor Living, Modern Dance Forms, Life-time Sports or Team Sports?"

Sir Harold stood there speechless.

"Get out there and play!" cried Squire Hagan.

Sir Harold, trembling in his armor, caught the round ball that was thrown to him. A young lad standing beside him showed him the proper way to bounce the ball upon the floor. Sir Harold was elated! He bounced the ball thrice around the large wooden room and then out the door into the corridor. He spotted a small room and bounced the ball inside. Shrieks greeted him as fair maidens in their undergarments noticed his appearance in their dressing room.

"Ye Gads!" cried Sir Harold, "this IS an education!"

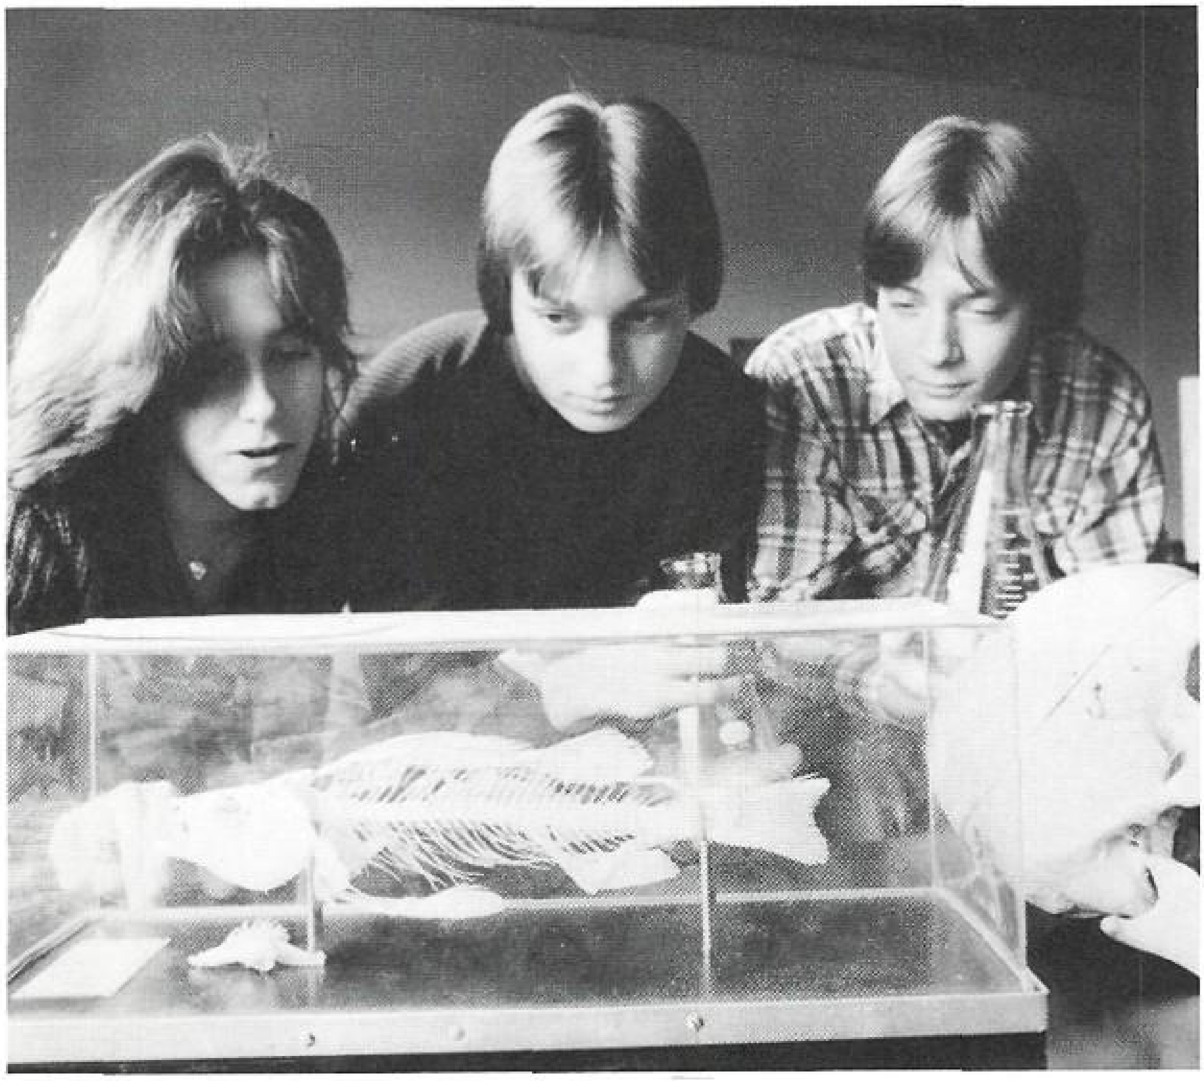


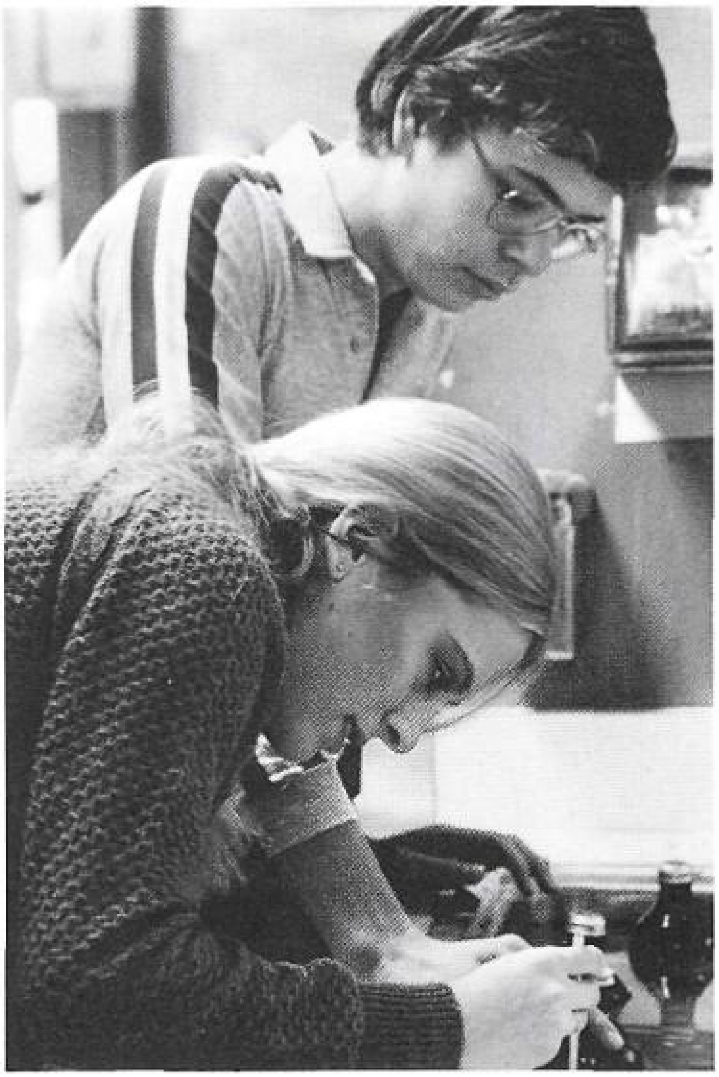
GREGG Shorthand

After leaving his last class, Sir Harold found himself in the second tower. Squire Scher took his arm and showed him about the classrooms. Knights were adding figures and scribbling in ledgers. Sir Harold was seated in a classroom and given a list of figures to add.

"I wonder," thought Sir Harold, "how practical would a market place be in a small village?"

The Recorders





Sir Harold climbed to the fifth floor where he was greeted and shown the different rooms. Knights were seen dissecting fetal pigs and examining skeletons in biology, and working experiments in Chemistry and Physics. Squire Killion invited him into his I.P.S. class. The experiment for the day was very dangerous, as they were working with explosive chemicals. Sir Harold watched the demonstration and then rushed to his lab table.

"Let's see," thought he, "me thinks you add thrice the amount of this strange white powder . . . " He continued to mutter beneath his breath as he mixed the chemicals and shook them violently.

The explosion, it was told later, could be heard all the way up to the third tower.

The Sciences

The Poets

Sir Harold walked to the second tower and met with Squire McGovern who immediately passed by Survey, Themes, English 9-1, and placed him in A.P. English. A young lad handed him a stack of books and whispered to Sir Harold to write a five-paragraph essay on all of them for tomorrow. Sir Harold groaned. But the title of the first book caught his eyes: The Canterbury Tales. He opened it and began to read . . .

All at once Sir Harold stumbled across a chaotic mess. Lady Grimaldi was busy running here and there, as were Lady Cantow and Squire Kubinec. A great book was in the making, a record of the entire school year . . .

The Philosophers

Sir Harold was quite weary as he entered the next tower. He had previously seen Squire Skruck discussing moral philosophies and other knights studying psychology. He seated himself in one of the seats arranged in a circle. Squire Barber entered the room. "How do you FEEL, Sir Harold?" he asked.

Sir Harold then proceeded to tell of his troubles with King Norcombe and his doomed village of Dipville. The listeners were sympathetic and offered feedback, but it did little to ease Sir Harold's heavy heart. Suddenly, as if someone had opened a curtain in a dark room, the truth dawned on Sir Harold.

Sir Harold remounted his trusty steed and set off for Dipville. He was tired from his long, busy day, but he was filled with joy. At first he had feared all hope was lost for Dipville, as he seemed to come up with no visible means of defense. But at the end of the day the 'truth' had been revealed to him, and the defense he was coming home with was the best weapon ever owned.

Sir Harold had left Dipville in search of swords, or sharp spears, but he had returned with the all-powerful weapon:

KNOWLEDGE!

With his books by his side, and his quill in his hand, Sir Harold would save Dipville by proving to the King that a market place was economically impractical. And when that was finished, Sir Harold would go on to build an educational institution and all of the Dipville residents would become knowledgeable and learned. And they would live happily ever after.

DECA

Distributive Education is a vocational education program for high school students interested in entering the business world in the areas of distribution and marketing of goods and services.

Students in junior and senior years elect one period of DE in which they study courses related to the field of distribution — business math, retailing, economics, business organization, salesmanship, and other subjects.

Afternoons, weekends, and vacations, students report to part-time job training stations for supervised on-the-job instruction.

DE students usually spend about 15 hours a week at their part-time jobs. They receive academic credit for satisfactory work experience, and they are paid for their part-time jobs.

Distributive Education prepares students for jobs in distributive occupations or for post-grad schooling. DE provides an excellent background for continuing education in such areas as business administration, advertising, marketing, and business education.

Through past experiences it has been seen that the SHS Marching Band and Color Guard are two of the most successful and outstanding organizations of the school. Coming out of one of its most extraordinary seasons in which state and national acclamation has been awarded, the band plans to continue this same success during this season. So far this year they have captured four trophies in only two competitions, the Portchester and Bunnel International Band Competitions. The rest of the year looks very optimistic as the band is planning to attend the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester, Virginia, where they are the returning runner up. The band also plans on attending the Barnum Festival for the fifth year. In addition, they are hosting their first Annual Invitational Marching Band Competition. The Band and Color Guard welcomes any and all students with musical interest to become a part of this fine program.

The 1980 Football season saw a young inexperienced team have a very difficult season due to a rash of injuries and the graduation of all but two starters from the 1979 team. The team played solid football, but came up short all season long. The young players improved each week and the team morale was high. This nucleus of returning players for next year should prove to be a very successful team.

The 1980 campaign saw two of our outstanding players make first team. All-County; Dennis Hickey and Robert Wilson. Honorable mention was achieved by Greg Dempsey and Kane Winn. Defensively the front line was anchored by Tony Mammone and Dennis Hickey. Other outstanding defense players include Robert Wilson, Mike Arnone, and Kane Winn. Offensively the Knights were explosive with Darren Romano leading the F.C.I.A.C. in passing with 13 touchdowns. His main targets were sophomore Willie Tobler, and senior Greg Dempsey. The running was handled by juniors Wayne Ragowski, Dino Gentile, and Sophomore Furess Whittington.

The kicking was handled by Scott Tyson who did a good job. A special thanks to our injured seniors Jay Fragomeli, and Bruce Scutti, who missed most of the season, and to our statisticians and managers.

The 1980 soccer season was marked by an unusually large number of tie games. The Black Knights were lead by seniors, Tony Zinicola, Tom Durso, Mario Maldonado and Dennis Barron. Together they helped to record six shutout games. The offense led by Mike Christe and Pat Domond recorded 17 goals for the season. The season was a success because the team won the City Championship for the third year in a row and the eighth time in the last ten years. This year's team also qualified for the state tournament for the first time in three years.

The Field Hockey team finished off its season with a total of 25 goals. Its record was 5-6-2.

Coach Brenda Baxter's girls followed through with a successful season led by senior captains Mary Anne Benke and Tina Volpe. Stamford had three girls named to the F.C.I.A.C. All-County Team; they were Mary Anne Benke, Tina Volpe and Alison Rosi. Eight seniors will be leaving the team this year. They are offensive players Alison Rosi, Sue Stanek, and Tina Volpe and defensive players Chris Alvarado, Mary Anne Benke, Jennifer Levesque, Mignon Steele and Lynn Sutherland. The remaining team members are Marnie Alvarado, Monica Cahill, Barb Palombo, Joan Campbell, Sharon Harper and Donna Farina.

The Volleyball team for 1980 grew considerably in size and skills. This was possible under the leadership of Captain Cindy Palkimas and the addition of Coach Kawecki. Both J.V. and Varsity were young teams and lacked experience. However, they played the most competitive volleyball that Stamford teams have ever played.

Senior Award winner was Cindy Palkimas who also received the MVP Award. Senior Lorilee Molloy was unable to finish the season due to an injury.

Juniors receiving letters were Kathy Callahan, Iris Molina, Bronice Pikul, Andrea Wahnowski, Liz Willis and Laura Martinelli who also received the Coaches Award

The 1980 Cross Country team enjoyed a season record of 15-1, and was led by captain Charles Gawlak who was voted team M.V.P. along with seniors Larry Reilly and Mark Grajski who feel they had a productive season. Coach Cioeta was very pleased with the team's accomplishments and is hopeful for next year. Letter winners included Anis Shilleh, Thomas Hromas, Larry Reilly, Charles Gawlak and Mark Grajski. We look forward to another great team next year.

The Girls Swim Team worked hard during this rebuilding season. Although the team was winless, they had a lot of fun together and at the same time improved individual performances. The team gained seven hard working freshmen who will become the foundation for a strong team in the future.

Sophomore Sarah Jalet, an outstanding swimmer, was selected to the "All County Team" and was selected Most Valuable Swimmer for SHS. She was the State LL champion in the 100 yd. breast stroke and finished third in the state open meet for the same event.

Kathy Paspalis was awarded the Coaches Award for exemplifying outstanding characteristics in team spirit. Her determination along with her spirit never let us down.

The Most Improved trophy was given to Dorothy Sullivan, a very hard working and dedicated sophomore.

The 1980-81 Boys Basketball team season was one of ups and downs. Led by seniors Craig Manchuck and Eric Fields, the team started off slowly but hung in there when games were on the line. By doing so, they were kept in competition for a F.C.I.A.C. playoff spot. Other important contributors to the team were juniors Mike Wilhoit, Eric Salley and senior Tom Durso. Under the direction of Coach Moriarty the Black Knights made it to the C.I.A.C. quarterfinals before losing to Rippowam in a well-played game.

Although this year's team had a record of 3-15, they worked well together. The team's M.V.P. was Terri Peterson, the most improved player was Shalon Little and the Coaches Award went to Kathy Callahan. Coach Cutter is looking forward to the 1981-82 season.

Brian Fontneau, Greg Rosum, Mike Cassidy and Steve Makovsky watch the action in the Stamford High zone.

The 1980-81 Black Knight Hockey team was piloted by first year coach Paul Fay who did a good job with a basically young and inexperienced team. Returning as captain, senior Matt Diot, along with the brother combination of Rosario and Joe Mallozzi and junior Mark MacDougall, accounted for a major part of the team's scoring totalling over a hundred points. Senior goalie Bruce Scutti kept Stamford in many games by doing an outstanding job in the nets. The team was never without hustlers; Gary Bruno, Mike Novak, Greg Rosum, Brian Fontneau, George Gutierrez and Mike Cassidy contributed greatly in this area. The defense, one of the best in the city, consisted of veterans Dennis Barron, Matt Diot, Brian Donnelly and first year men Rich Riddle, Ed Fries and Steve Makovsky.

Expected to be nothing like the F.C.I.A.C. Championship team of last year, the Knights surprised everyone by staying in the thick of things in a tough F.C.I.A.C. West division despite heartbreaking losses to Wilton, Ridgefield and to Staples in overtime.

Next year we look to fine players in Scott Stenquist, Mike Mocker, Mike Mehan, goalie Paul Gallagher and many of the mentioned above to carry on the Black Knight hockey tradition.

Gymnastics

All-League First Team nominee Laurie Calyanis takes a rest between events.

Despite a low turnout, the girls gymnastics team tumbled, twisted and kipped to a very successful rebound from last season's 0-11 disappointment. A 6 wins, 4 losses, 1 forfeit season came about for new head coach Lee Fieseler's squad only as a result of long, hard hours of work.

Led by captain Linda Korfman and Laurie Calyanis, who as seniors both performed well, the team soundly defeated some of the traditionally stronger FCIAC teams. The team effort was truly affected by the strong contributions of juniors Carol Retter, Sue Weiding and freshman Lynn Zecca.

Exhibitions at Dolan and Turn of River Junior High Schools added to the gymnastics program, and traveling to the Yorktown Invitational and the state meet in Hartford brought much enthusiasm to Stamford High. The team is anxiously looking forward to next season with a fresh outlook for a new and stronger team.

The 1980-81 Swim Team had its most successful season in its history. The Black Knights, under Coach Gary Bloom, ended the regular season with a 7-2 record. Highlighting this season were the victories over Rippowam and Westhill, which allowed SHS to win the City Championship.

The Knights went into the State Championship Meet confidently and performed extremely well. Five school records and three city records were set in the Finals. Jalet took the 500 Free Record, Brown the 100 yard Butterfly and the 200 Individual Medley record, Dalmolin the 100 Breast Mark. The 400 Free Relay of Brian Brown, Rich Dalmolin, Sam Valet, and Bob Bowes also set a new city record of 3:17.5. These, along with superb swims by Swinnerton and Bowes helped SHS gain a fourth place overall finish.

The State Open Championship Meet turned out to be quite successful for the Black Knights. Five team members qualified: Brian Brown, Ken Swinnerton, Rich Dalmolin, Sam Jalet and Bob Bowes. The team finished an incredible 6th place overall and the highlight of the meet came with the 400 Free Relay in which we placed 2nd in the state.

The entire 1980-81 Team wishes to thank Coach Bloom for his dedication to our team.

The Stamford High Golf team finished the 1980 season with our best record ever. Among our victories was Staples High School, which we defeated for the first time in twenty-one years. Additionally we captured the City Championship and the Mike Ballo Tourney while narrowly missing a win in the FCIAC team championship. We went into the State Championship with high hopes, but finished a disappointing tenth. We were led by 1st team-All County performers Bob Chien (captain) and Craig Manchuck. Chien was the state individual Champion, while Manchuck, the team's MVP, was medalist in the Ballo Tourney and finished fourth in the FCIAC Individual Championship. In addition, Anthony Marciano (9-3-1), Greg Rosum (7-4-1) and Mike Presutto (3-2) also turned in fine performances. Four of the five starters are returning, so we are looking forward to a successful campaign in '81.

It was truly an exciting and outstanding season for the 1980 Black Knight Baseball team.

The Black Knights as a team, utilized strong hitting, pitching and exceptional speed along the base paths en route to a 15-4 record.

Their strong desire to remain reigning City and FCIAC Champions was a major factor in their success. For the second consecutive year Nick Pia, Bill Velez and Kenny Wright made the All Daily News Team with Velez and Pia on First Team, Wright on Second. Again it was Velez and Pia to make the all state team. Along with Wright, Velez and Pia were also part of the all County team.

They were led by Senior Captain Karie Darling along with seniors Jan Collins, Jackie Hagenbach and LeeAnn Santoro. The remainder of the team consisted of Juniors, Cindy Palkimas, Eileen Maki, Alison Rosi, Terri Peterson, Megee Benke, Lorilee Molloy, Maryanne Partlow, Sonia Abarzua and sophomore, Martha Sabia. The team was young but worked well together and had a lot of spirit. This positive attitude was displayed throughout the season.

Nominations for the FCIAC team were LeeAnn Santoro, First Team with Cindy Palkimas and Karie Darling receiving honorable mention.

The seniors will be missed, however the junior class is strong and will be looking forward to another successful year.

We are finally through being what upperclassmen call "Frosh." This year is going to be different. We plan to be in with those upperclassmen.

Last year we had a little bit of trouble raising money with our candy sale, but overall we did fairly well. We raised enough money to go on a rollerskating class trip.

This year we plan to do twice as well. We plan to have a stuffed animal sale, a magazine drive, bagel sales, and many other fund raisers. We hope to have enough money to have a successful Junior and Senior Prom.

Juniors

James Deary, Maria Palermo, Jodi Talentino, Stephanie Johnson, Mark Barrenechea, Ursula Sterling.

This year, the class of '82 is undergoing many changes. Our biggest change is our new line of officers. Mark Barrenechea is our new President, aided by Stephanie Johnson — Vice President, Jodi Talentino — Secretary, and Maria Palermo — Treasurer. Our advisors are Miss Sterling and Mr. Deary.

We plan on having many new and successful fund raisers this year. Along with the tried and true donut sales, we intend on selling Christmas ornaments, tee-shirts and personalized license plates. We are hoping for a success with the Homecoming and the Junior Prom.

and never, ever gain a pound.
Disgusting.
The od couple Party!

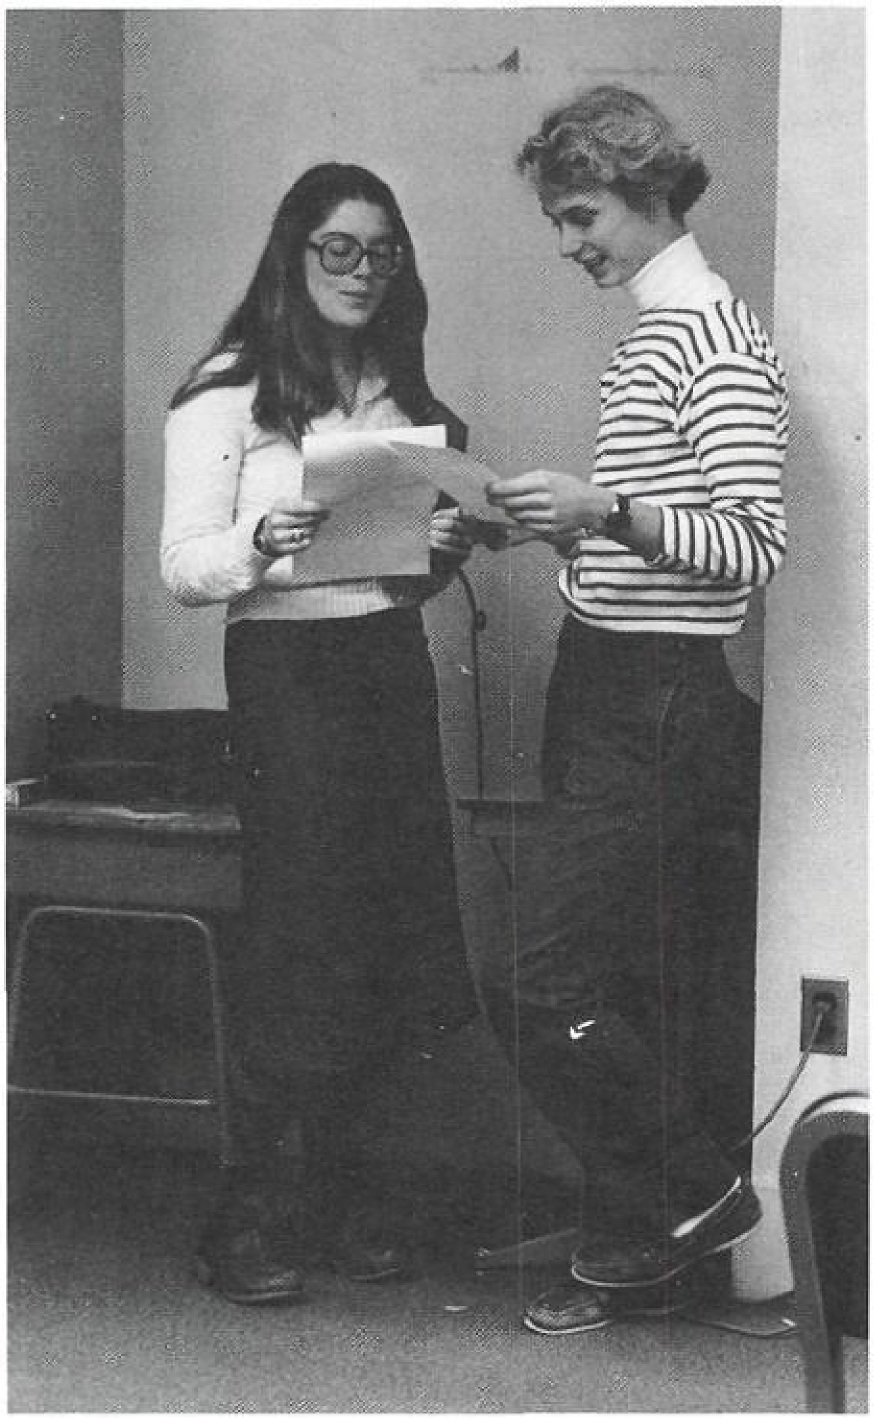
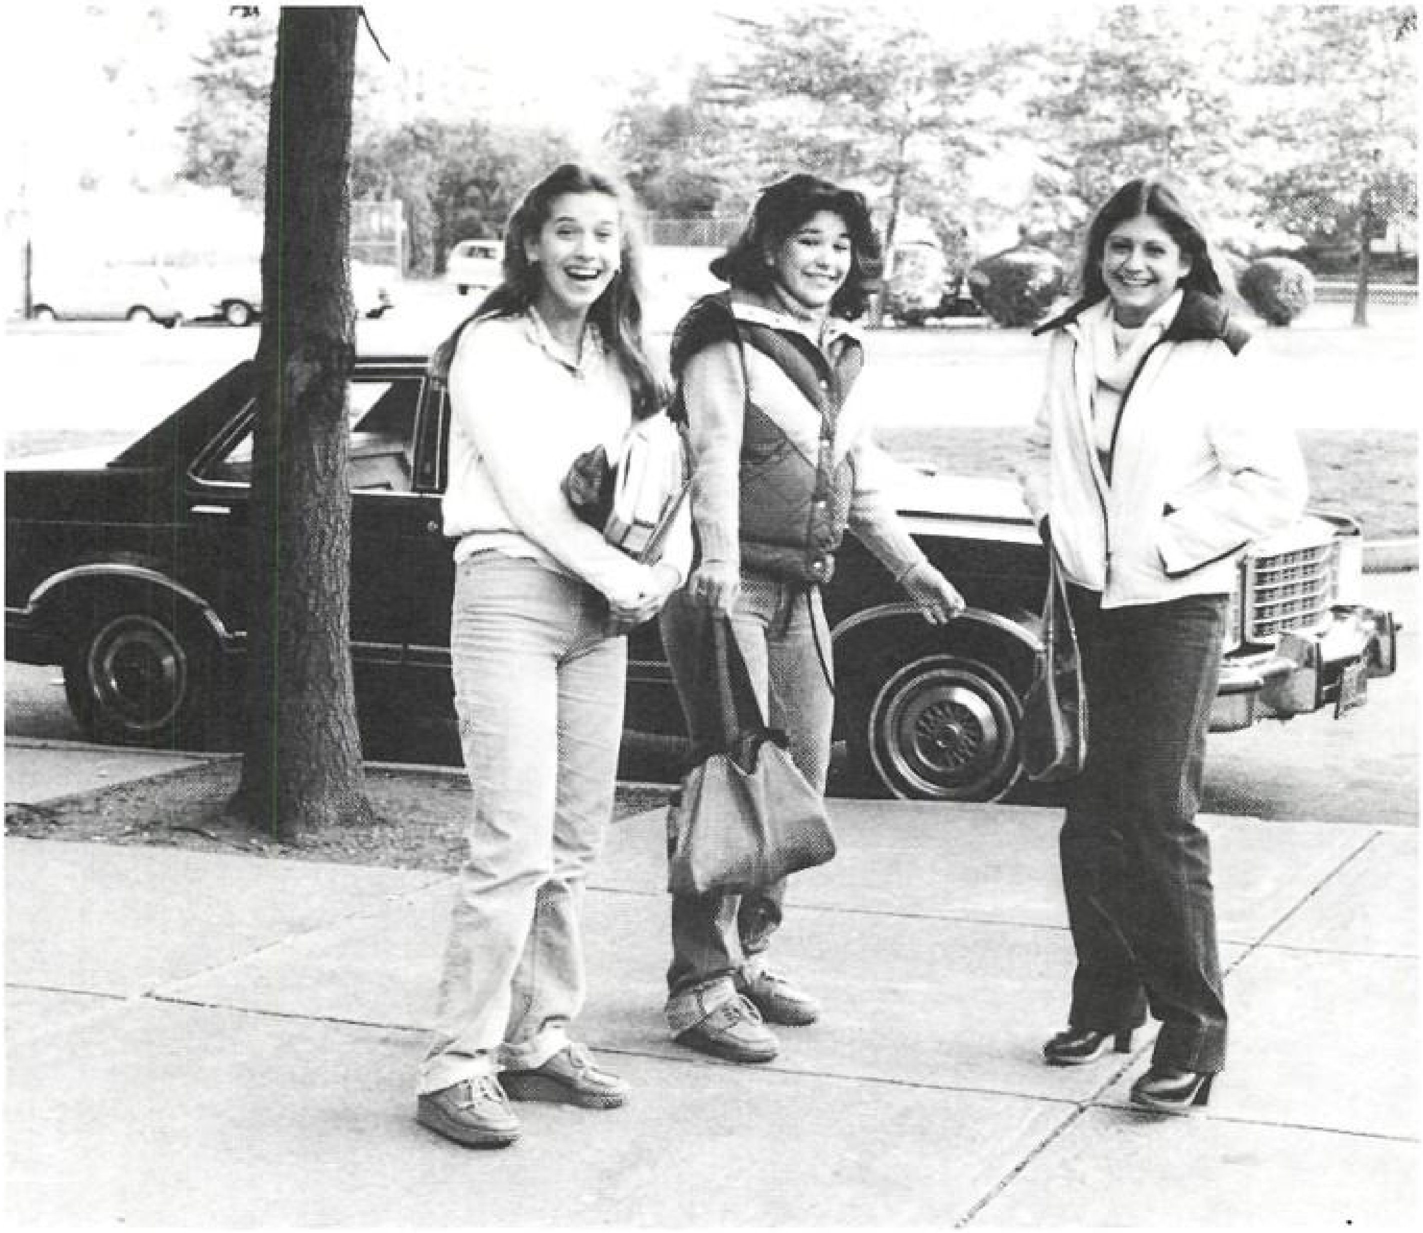
Words of inspiration to start off the day.

We awake in the morning, seemingly average teenagers, but as we go through our morning vigils, we soon change. We leave our houses as high school students, but arrive at school, atop our trusty steeds, Black Knights. Our school closets and fellow students are constant sources of inspiration; both to enhance our day and to inspire us to creative beauty before the battle begins.

Eddie Barosky and Sue Stanek with their morning faces.



"This has been Sue Keane and Eddie Barosky with the morning announcements."



A surprised Beth McDonald, Cathy Delcarmine and Antoinette Lombardi smile for the camera before entering school.

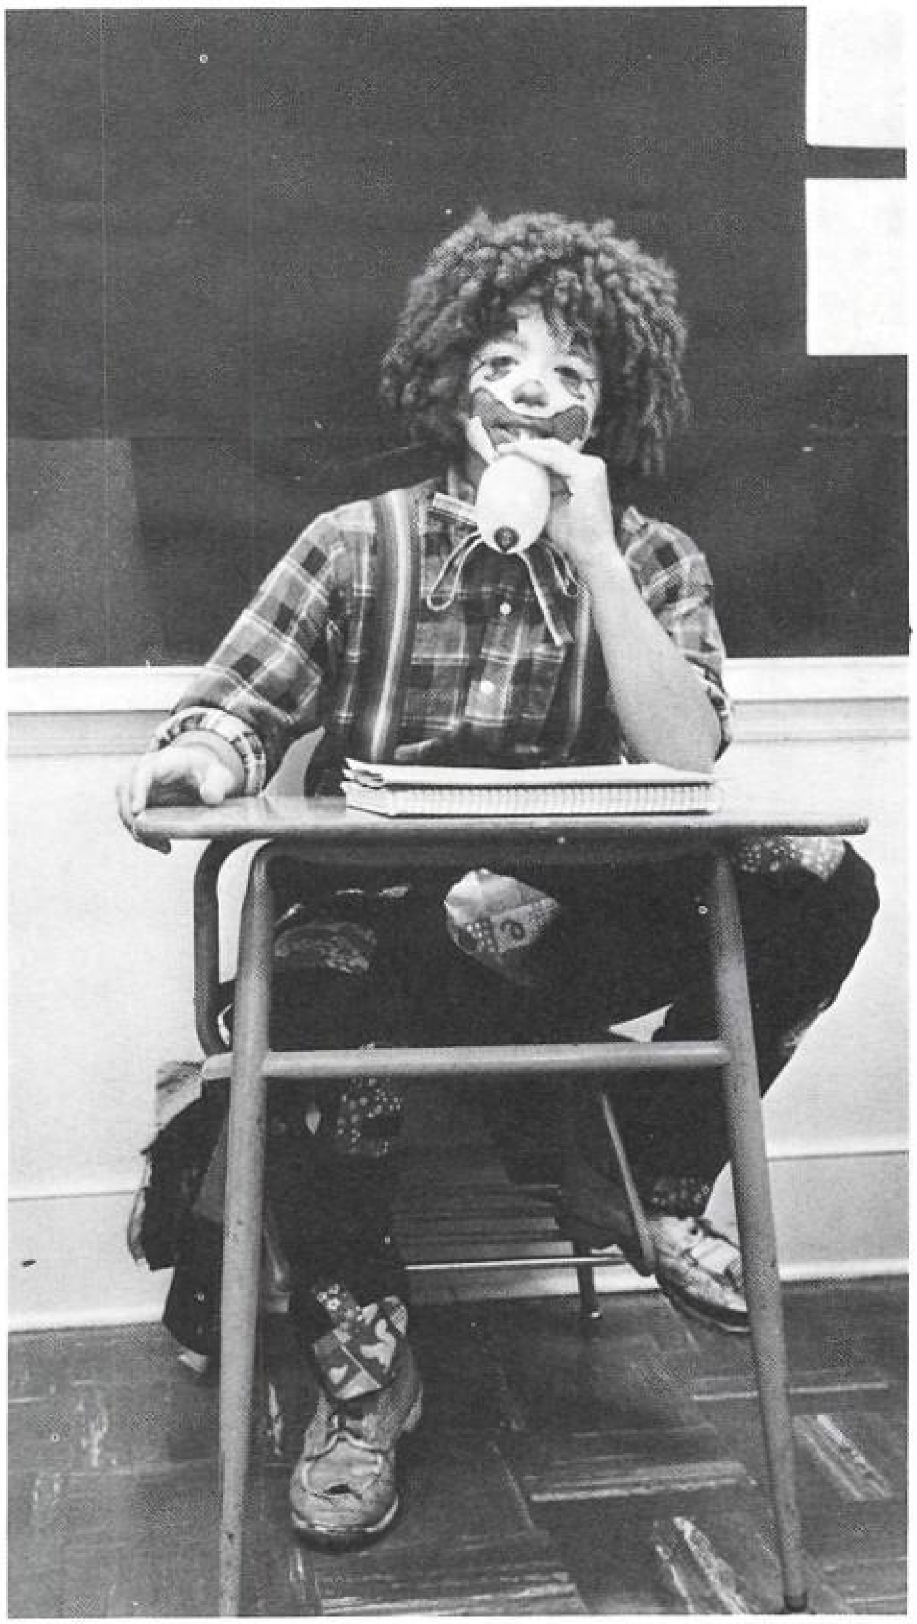
Frank Toth comes to school in an unusual fashion.

Art Lab makes Kim Bergman smile.



Anthony Marciano clowns around in English class.

Laurie Calyanis has a thoughtful moment in Human Behavior.

Anthony Petillo skims Wuthering Heights for an upcoming test.

Cosimo Scicchitano exhibits his artistic talent.

As the fighting begins we arm ourselves with pens and books, our swords and shields against ignorance. The fighting is treacherous, as we advance upon our foe with battle worn clothing. At times we are weighted under by enemy attacks, but when we pull through with a victory, our faces glow with triumph.

There are the finer points of our day, though. Occasionally, we dress up to express our inner personalities and display our talents in fashion. We also have our formal occasions to consider. Proms with elegant chaperones are quite common among the upperclassmen. Together with friends we display our pride in being Black Knights.

Joe Nestor, Helen Mihaleas, and Barb Kaminski catch the "Knight Fever."

It's the new Ms. Manchuck.

It's the Spirit of Christmas.

RAMS
RAMS
STAMFORD

Once again, Stamford takes the lead.

Liz Mazza harmonizes with the band.

Mr. Terlizzo enjoys the Junior Prom.

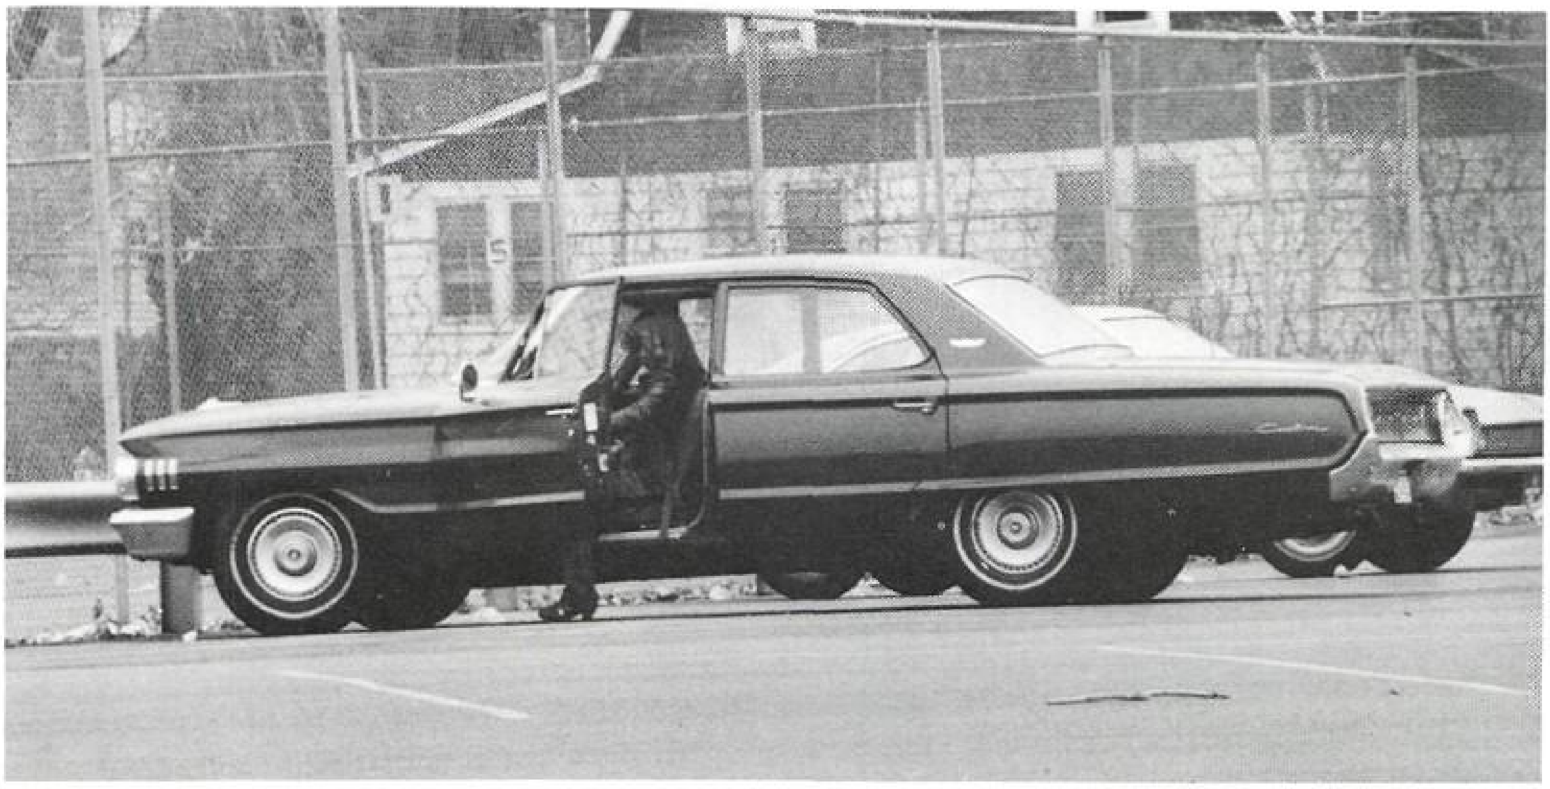
Megee Benke and Alison Rossi share an RC and a smile.

An overhead view of the teachers' parking lot.

Anne Wade and Jennifer Coombs board their bus at the end of an exhausting day.

School's Out!!!

But, as all good things must come to an end, so must our day as Black Knights. As we board our carriages or march off in pairs, we are absorbed once again into life around us. Alone or with our friends, though, is the deep and lingering knowledge that we are Black Knights.



Sue Weidig heads for home.

Waiting for the late bus — or maybe the 5th period bell?

BODETKA '80

The Royal Court

Mark Rookwood — President, Betty Guy — Vice-President, Darlyn Saumell — Vice-President, Pam Soares — Secretary, Anthony Petillo — Treasurer. Sitting: Mr. Pociadlo and Miss Kenna — Class Advisors.

To The Class of 1981:

Looking back at the four years we've shared, the many things we've done and the places we've been, I realize how the variety of all your moods, interests, ideas, abilities, backgrounds and feelings have contributed to the character of Stamford High School.

From stacking many cases of chips (our claim to fame) to cutting dozens of bagels — there wasn't a day we didn't work together. Working together, each of you, in your own unique way, contributed to what has become the Class of 1981. Let us hope that our example of what hard work can achieve will rekindle a desire in future classes to work together as we have done. This work was our love for each other made visible.

You made it easy for me to know you and appreciate what you are, and your honesty made me feel closer to you. Our interaction reminded me of the importance of my profession, and I am very proud to have been your class advisor.

As we go our separate ways at graduation, we should not feel sad, because the togetherness we shared will become more meaningful in its absence. The depth of love is not experienced until the hour of separation.

Go with love.

Frank

Dear Graduates,

It has been a very rewarding experience having been your class advisor. I have enjoyed working with your class immensely.

I had the pleasure of having had many of you as students. Having shared my first teaching experience with many of you will always be cherished. There will always be a very special place in my heart for your class.

May all your dreams come true! Best of Luck.

ODETKA '80

Long ago, we came together in a castle so immense that we were sure we would be lost forever.
We were different then;
unsure lads and lasses,
bowing to the lords,
learning from the scholars,
climbing from the lowest dungeon to the highest tower.

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS 1977-1978.

With time,
we found our way down the corridors to the festivals and frolics and the smiles that became familiar.
We cheered at the jousting bouts and dearly loved the Knight life.

We meet again,
Leaving the castle that seems tiny now.
We are strong, brave knights eager to cross the drawbridge and embark on the conquest.

In parting, we feel sadness
but we will remain forever comrades.
Fare Thee Well . . .

e're proud to be a part of your mmunity.

Seniors — is John really Best??? Is there such a thing as an "all purpose luper pooper scooper???" Skylarks shall always be #1. How are TWIN STARS these days? Bette Midler will always be great. Watch out for those flying meatballs. Thems there sharks in that there water!!! Coconuts are good for eating, sometimes. Are jelly donuts the new thing??? Amy — how's the stick shift? May there always be a little "Frenchie" in your heart. Slim Jims go with our motels, or is it a hotel. I am not really sure. Favorite colors are green and fuscia. It's guardsmen city!!! Lisa, is the back seat your's or mine? The world shall never know. Gee your hair smells terrific! Big green globs of . . . Why do I have so many people in this small car!!!

Champion is planting seeds for the future.

Champion is one of America's leading forest products companies.

We plant the seeds that grow into the trees from which we make a wide variety of basic and necessary products: wood building products for construction, fine papers for printing and communications, and paper packaging for shipping and selling.

Champion employs some 43,000 people who work primarily in the United States, but also in Brazil and Canada. And almost 40,000 individuals and institutions own stock in Champion and share in our growth.

Because our business depends on trees which take from 25 to 50 years to mature, we're planting the seeds today that will benefit generations in the future.

The future is what we're banking on.

And we're planning—and planting—for it.

Tammie,

I wish this was our last year instead of the second. Our junior year will be better though with the Prom and everything. (I can't wait)

See guys like you so try to forget about Kevin and live a happy life. Call me over the summer and maybe we can go shoping or to the beach for the day. Good luck in the future.

Love
Pam

Tammie,

Nice having you in lunch, next year same time, same place. See you next year at the munchies or maybe sometime this summer.
